FRANZ BOAS

Last week, Franz Boas, professor emeritus of Anthropology at Columbia university, laid down his life's work at the age of 84, and passed on to his reward. Then 211483

He did more than any one man to fight the vicious fallacy of race, debunk the "blonde superman" and expose what he called "this Nordic nonsense."

He fathered a whole school of anthropology which repudiated "race" as a vicious invention of snobs, exploiters and imperialists, and its graduates are honored and respected today as outstanding scholars.

"What we know of race," he said, "is largely a matter of environment. There is no such thing as pure race."

On another occasion he declared. "There is to reason to believe that one race is by nature so much more intelligent, endowed with greater will-power, or emotionally more stable than others that the difference would materially influence its culture. Nor is there any good reason to believe that the dif ferences between races are so great that the descendants of mixed marriages would be inferior to their parents."

He also said, "None of the civilizations was the product of the genius of a single person. Ideas and incentions were carried from one to the other; and, although intercommunication was slow, each people which participated in the ancient development contributed its share to the general progress.... As all have worked together in the development of the ancient civilizations, we must bow to the genius of all, whatever group of mankind they may represent.

When Dr. boas came on the educational stage, the most grotesque fictions were circulating about "race," and eminent scholars were prostituting themselves to bolster and justify the enslavement and exploitation of colored nations on the ground that they were "inferior" and "not ready for PHYSICAL. government."

He did much to clear away this rubbish and put the old school on the Some of his best known defensive. works are "The Mind of Primitive Man." "Primitive Art" and "Anthropology and Modern Life."

A German-born American of Jewish parentage, he was a brilliant expenent and follower of the truth, and he performed a great service by depriving the myth of race superiority of any scientificbasis.

While his passing is greatly to be mourned, we can be thankful that his students -- Robert Lowie, Clark Wissler, Melville Herskovits, Ruth Benelict, Margaret Mead, Alexander Goldenweiser, Paul Radin and Zora Hurston -are carrying on his work.

COLONISTS HAD NO COLOR PREJUDICE

The white colonists to the New World in the 16th century, having no color prejudice in Europe, brought none with them. Racial distinctions arose, not from sexual causes, but from economic ones. In what is now the United States there was this difference, however. The white men brought white women with them and thus arose laws against race mixing, laws which collapsed, however, with the abolition of the slave trade and the increased need for Negro labor.

THE taboo, however, remained where the white woman and the black man were concerned because the system of exploitation based on whiteness of skin could be maintained only through the white woman continuing to breed white. On the other hand, the union of the white man and the black woman, by breeding more slaves of color, permitted the white exploiter to eat his cake and have it too.

LAWS CANNOT STOP BACE MIXING

In short, nothing can be done about it. Nature has planted the germ of race mixing deep in the human race. Make all the laws you wish, but as Huxley said: "What has been decreed among prehistoric protozoa campet be annuled by Act of Parliament." The whole history of race mixing in the United States is one grand proof of that.

IN OTHER WORDS, a "racial prejudice" is something people think up afterwards in order to solidify a prejudice that already existed for other than "racial" reasons. Prejudice against Jews, for example, existed as religious and economic prejudice long before it became, under Hitler, a "racial" prejudice. Prejudice against Negroes in the United States originates as prejudice against and contempt for people of lower social standing (slaves). Making a "racial" issue out of the class issue perpetuates the class stratification. In short, "race" is the first-class red herring could time.

In my next weeks column that deal with the third article in the "Scientific Monthly" series: "Racial Status and Personality Development," by Professor Allison Davis.

tists cannot agree on the classification of "races," many preferring to classify all men as being simply members of "the human race." Even if human beings are divided into white, yellow, and Negro, these divisions would not represent biological "races" but sub-species.

Secondly, there is no such thing as a "pure race," Adolf Hitler to the contrary notwithstanding. Thirdly, we don't know how the various subspecies of men arose, nor do we know how traits indicative of stock or "race" are transmitted.

Furthermore, studies have been been ein serious search of "race difference," but in all cases no differences have been and that cannot be accounted for by differences in living conditions. Finally, says Dr. Krogman, not as a sentimental equalitarian, but simply as a scientist reporting the facts as he sees them, there is no such thing as racial "inferiority" or "superiority."

Doon Redfield

IF, AS DA KROGMAN says, there is so little positive knowledge on the subject of "race," what there that is known for sure?

The answer is to be found in the September sue of "Scientific Monthly" which contains an article by Dean Robert Redfield, University of Chicago anthropologist entitled that We Do Know About Race!

Dr. Redfield agrees with Dr. Krogman that "race" as a biological phenomenon is a field that offers a very few positive conclusions. But as a social phenomenon "race" is a very real thing. In other words, wherever people believe in "race,"
